I would like to register my disappointment with the current proposed final judgement in this case.

The terms API and middleware are so narrowly defined as to make the impact of this judgement minimal to Microsoft. If anything, it will be licensed to continue it's anti-competetive practices with impunity.

Any settlement that does not toss out Microsofts preload agreements and open their office suite formats and networking protocols to the light of day will be a travesty and will pave the way for many more years of the Microsoft non-benevolent monopoly.

Go back and get it right!
